COMMUNITY IS NOT BOUNDED

MUST BE OF SERVICE TO ALL, BROWN SAYS IN ADDRESS.

PROSPERITY AIDS ALL

Chamber Of Commerce Should Co-operate With Farmers And Help Them With Problems.

Declaring that a community does not end with municipal boundary lines but includes the surrounding territory which supplies the city or town with produce and from which the latter draws trade, Colvin B. Brown, chief of the organization service bureau of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, appealed for a greater co-operation between the city and surrounding country in his address at the Chamber of Commerce dinner at the First M. E. Church last night.

About 115 persons were present at the dinner last night, which was served by the women of the First M. E. Church. L. M. Eek, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, was chairman of the meeting. Miss Ruth Houchens gave a special musical number.

At the outset of his speech, Mr. Brown made it clear that the Chamber of Commerce is a business organization that succeeds to the extent that it is organized and conducted along business lines.

"The Chamber of Commerce," he said, "treats the town as a business and civic unit or plant. It directs its activities to improving the output and conditions in the plant."

It is these community units that make up America, the speaker pointed out, and it is the individuals that make up the community units. The character of American homes, he continued, is determined by their living conditions and the same is true of cities, states, and nations.

In outlining the duties of a chamber of commerce, Mr. Brown said that it should co-operate with the farmer in helping him with his marketing and other problems. Its object is not primarily to get the trade of the farmer, but to help the farmer with his problems, Mr. Brown continued.

Prosperity Helps All.

"If your farm community is prosperous, trade will largely take care of itself," he continued. "Farmers should be encouraged to bring their problems to the chamber of commerce for joint conference with committees of business men. To prove our good faith, we must convince the farmer that we consider his interest first, convinced that if we can help him prosper we will be helping our own prosperity.

"We are most of us interested in the industrial development of our towns, but frequently make the mistake of thinking this is brought about chiefly through the removal of industries established elsewhere, when such is not the case. The primary industrial growth of no American city has been due to the fact that it has been able to transplant industries. The growth has been from within and not from without. It has been due to the expansion of existing industries and the coming in of similar and related industries. The little industries of today may be the big industries of tomorrow, and most of these are started by local men with local capital. The chamber of commerce that is expending its chief effort in trying to get industries located elsewhere to uproot and transplant themselves, is chasing a will o' the wisp.

Should Increase Trade.

"Doing what it can to increase the wholesale and retail trade of the town is another important field of activity for the chamber. He who goes into a store to buy is not a customer of that store alone; he is a customer of the town, and the chamber of commerce is interested in holding his trade. The clerk behind the counter is the first point of contact with the customer, and the chamber should meet with these clerks and impress upon them that they are not working for their employers alone, but for the town as well, and get them to cooperate with the chamber in holding and increasing trade.

"Business, in the best sense of term, is very much more than a money making affair. It has had a very great deal to do with the advancement of civilization and the up-building of the human race. It has provided the needs of life and its satisfactions. It adorns the home, nourishes the body and makes life increasingly more comfortable and happy."

FIGHT HIGHER RAIL CHARGES

COUNTY CLERKS' FIGURES SHOW HIKE WOULD BE UNJUST

UNPAID TAXES MOUNT

In Nodaway They Have Grown From $4,509 to $37,806 Since 1919—Valuation Much Higher

Determined opposition to the granting of increased freight rates to Missouri railroads was expressed at the meeting of the County Clerks Association at Excelsior Springs last week, according to Fred Smith, clerk of Nodaway County.

At the request of William Hirth as chairman of the Corn Belt Committee, a number of the county clerks are looking up the figures for 1919 to 1924 showing the uncollected tax for those years, the total valuation of farm lands in the different counties, total levy and the estimated amount of uncollected tax on farm lands. The purpose is to collect evidence that agriculture has not recovered and is not in a position, as compared with other industries, to stand an increase in its freight rates.

The carriers have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant increased freight rates on a uniform basis of 5 per cent. According to Hirth, the carriers take the position that agricultural products are not bearing their part of the freight rates and that if the increase goes through it probably will mean a much larger percentage increase on agricultural products.

An investigation made by County Clerk Smith shows that the total uncollected tax in this county has grown from $4,509.47 in 1919 to $37,806.28 in 1924. The valuation of farm lands has increased from $23,391,595 to $61,674,483, or nearly triple, while the total levy of state and county has decreased only from $1.23 to $ .73.

The complete table follows:

Year	Total Uncollected Tax	Valuation on Farm Lands	Total Levy S. & C.
1919	$ 4,509.47	$23,391,595	$1.23
1920	10,584.21	27,167,613	1.37
1921	24,309.60	62,818,982	.59
1922	19,903.70	59,645,559	.54
1923	24,198.28	64,755,530	.65
1924	37,806.28	61,674,483	.73

Today the College Students Play for, You See, It's Walk-Out Day

The students of the Teachers College walked out today. According to the traditional yearly custom, they went on a one-day strike, so to speak.

Out they walked, and back in they walked almost as quickly. "It's too cold to go to the woods today," they said. "Let's go back."

And back they went—but not to studies. The entire administration building was turned into one big playground, and all day long faculty and students mingled together, lessons forgotten and play, play, play the order of the day.

At noon a luncheon was served. Not the kind of a luncheon where there are table clothes and many, many spoons, but the weiner-and-bun, cider-and-pickles kind.

And the games they played! Well, what kind of games did you play when you were ten years old. Everybody was young. Teachers and administrative officers of the institution entered into the fun, and, out of respect for the good sportsmanship shown by these, usually so serious minded, the curtain of obscurity is drawn on their actions. They are not to be excused. They were warranted. It was walk-out day.

Walk-out has been a custom of the State Teachers College for years. It's arrival is preceded by a great deal of mystery and a tremendous effort to keep every thought of the occasion a secret. But annually it leaks out. That is, annually until today when it was claimed to be a total surprise. And it was a surprise because not only the faculty but the entire student body, with the exception of a committee of three seniors, was ignorant of it until shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

Everyone was in class. Everything was running smoothly. Suddenly came the tradional three peals of the bell. There was a scurry of feet. Teachers peered inquisitively into halls to confirm their suspicion, closed their textbooks, smiled, and dismissed their classes.

And walk-out day began.

Tomorrow 100 per cent of the student body will report for classes with lessons unprepared.

SUIT FOR $91 TRIED TODAY

DELAY IN LIVESTOCK SHIPMENT CHARGED AGAINST RAILROAD.

ARGUMENTS FINISHED

Change of Venue Is Asked by Defendant in Case of John Little vs Charley Finnell, et al.

A suit for only $91 occupied all of today in Circuit Court, when a jury heard the suit of Shanks Brothers against the Chicago Great Western Railroad Co.

Shanks Brothers ask damages of $91 for alleged delay in a shipment of livestock to the St. Joseph market. Arguments by the attorneys in the case, McCaffrey and Cook and Shinabarger, Blagg and Ellison, were completed about 4 o'clock.

The jury hearing the case today was composed of Jake Burch, J. L. Teson, T. M. Cox, Luther Fast, John Gex, J. L. Partridge, H. D. McDonald, W. P. Huston, Julius Strubey, Ed Goodpasture, John Morehouse and L. E. Hall.

On a technicality in the pleadings several months ago, the case was taken to the Kansas City Court of Appeals and that tribunal ordered that the trial in the lower court proceed.

In the damage suit of John Little against Charley Finnell, Erney Grimsley and Frank Boring, a motion was filed by the defendants to require Little to give security for the costs of the suit, and each of the defendants individually filed a petition for change of venue, alleging both the court and the people of the court to be prejudiced against them.

"Best County in State" Is Nodaway to County Clerks

Now it is Nodaway County, B. C. I. S.

When the Missouri Association of County Clerks held its convention last week at Excelsior Springs, the various clerks were asked to introduce themselves by rising in turn and giving their names and counties. When it came the turn of Fred Smith, representing Nodaway County, he responded like this:

"Fred Smith—Best County in the State."

Immediately arose the county clerk of Saline County.

"I'd like to know," he began "how Nodaway County gets the right to call itself the best county in the state. Now Saline County—"

But the Saline Countian had answered his own argument. County Clerk Smith had not mentioned the name of his county, but the disputing speaker—and everyone else—knew its name from the description he furnished.

Active Demand for Currency on Increase

Money Now In Circulation Is Greatest Amount Since November, 1920, According To Treasury Department.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Indicating increased national prosperity, especially among the business establishments whose success is dependent upon small sales and quick turnovers, active demand for currency jumped over forty-three million dollars in September, according to figures made public at the treasury department today.

The total of $4,827,000,000 cash in circulation at the beginning of October is the greatest of any normal year in history, only exceeded by the $5,628,000,000 at the peak of the post-war inflation period in November, 1920.

Figuring the dollar at its buying power, the present circulation is far ahead of that of 1920.

Treasury officials are alarmed at the demand for paper money, especially $1 bills. Circulation of these greenbacks has leaped more than forty million dollars in the last six months.

Mrs. Olive Bennett of Rea is spending the day in Wilcox with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Broyles.

ORGANIZATION TO BE MADE

TO APPEAL TO CONGRESS FOR WATERWAYS FUNDS.

RIVER ERA IS HERE

"Go To It," Says Secretary Of Commerce Herbert Hoover In Address To Delegates Last Night.

Kansas City, Oct. 20.—Inland waterways advocates today were working on a permanent organization for river improvement, growing out of the Missouri River Navigation Conference which has been in session here.

A resolutions committee, composed of delegates from each of the six Missouri valley states represented at the conference, went into session to make the organization a permanent one.

It is planned to bring pressure upon the national administration and Congress to force a rivers appropriation sufficient to establish a sixty-foot channel in the Missouri River.

Kansas City, Oct. 20.—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce in the President's cabinet, speaking last night before six thousands persons in Convention hall, projected a practical vision of an inland waterways system nine thousand miles long and urged the nation to get it done.

"We should go to it," were his words, and the seriously-minded crowd answered with applause. "And get it done."

The problem of navigating the Missouri River was seen as part of a vast plan of waterways—not a sectional enterprise, but part of a vast project to be attacked at once.

"We must conceive and attack the construction as a connected whole," the calm voice of America's greatest business man continued, "not as a collection of disconnected local river and lake improvements projects, as has been our habit in the past."

Vision of a Vast System.

It was a crowd worthy of the great business man's mettle—a crowd of grave men and women with imagination enough to envisage a vast system of navigable rivers and business experience enough to know the practical problem of making the dream come true.

Says Drunken Crew Aboard Striken Boat

Survivors of Comanche Disaster File Charges Against Company—Captain Denies Allegations.

New York, Oct. 20.—Charges that every rule of the sea was violated by a drunken crew, mad with whiskey and terror of the roaring inferno beneath their feet were made today by the survivors of the Clyde liner, Comanche, which burned off the coast of Florida late Saturday night.

The passengers charge that the maddened crew pulled passengers out of life boats to make room for themselves and they had refused to aid passengers swimming about in the water while they themselves escaped in the life boats.

James Moore was elected chairman of a group of outraged survivors who asked the Clyde line officials to reimburse some of the poorer passengers for their losses.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 20.—"The only intoxicated member of my crew when the fire broke out aboard the Comanche Saturday night was a negro waiter," declared Captain Curry, master of the Comanche in answer to a question put to him today by G. W. Harney, chief of the United States steamboat inspection service of this district, who is conducting a hearing into the disaster.

In opening the hearing, Harney made the remark that he believed the fire was burning in the hold of the ill-fated vessel before she sailed from Jacksonville at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and as the hearing proceeded, the fact was brought out that the liner was not given the customary fire prevention inspection before she started.

"ACES" BEHIND COL. MITCHELL

AVIATORS BACK PROPOSAL FOR SEPARATE AIR UNIT.

WANT FLYERS AT HEAD

Questionnaire is Sent Out By American Society For Promotion Of Aviation—Prominent Birdmen Reply.

New York, Oct. 20.—(United Press)—Unqualified and unanimous support of a unified United States air service plan as proposed by Colonel William Mitchell was voiced by former American "aces" and active flyers in response to a questionnaire sent them by the American Society for Promotion of Aviation. The replies were made public throughout the United States yesterday.

Men from all parts of the country who were drawn together in war-time in active service in the air against Germany apparently have united again in demanding a separate flying service, commanded by flying officers. Many of those who replied to the letter sent them by Thomas L. Hill, president of the A. S. P. A. explained they left the service after the war because there was little opportunity for promotion for flyers, who were required to give flying training to officers who were promoted over their heads.

Among those who replied heartily endorsing the Mitchell policy were Elliott Springs, James Healey, Edward Haight, George W. Furlow, Weir Cook, Gordon Reel, Lyle Hall, Robert O. Lindsay, Jerry Vansconcells, Noble Estey, Charles M. Kinsolving, Charles Mathews, Austen Crehore and H. L. Lestrade. No replies unfavorable to a unified air service were received.

Three officials of the Nebraska Gas and Electric Co., of Lincoln were Maryville visitors yesterday. They were: C. C. Hellmers, public relations executive; F. J. Guenther, superintendent of operations; and H. F. Boehner, assistant general manager.

They attended the Chamber of Commerce banquet last night and left later for Lincoln. Ray Harrison, manager of the Maryville Electric Light and Power Co., went to Lincoln this morning.

Boy Laughs About His Slaying His Father

Warren Vandervoot, 17, Amuses Newspaper Men By Burlesquing Witnesses Who Testify On Stand.

Allison, Ia., Oct. 20.—Lodged in the Butler County jail, Warren Vandervoot, 17, laughed and joked today as he faced the reckoning for the murder of his father and the attempted slaying of his mother. The boy, within a few hours to hear Judge C. H. Kelly's sentence, which can at best be a long term of years in the penitentiary and with the shadow of the noose hanging over him, amused newspaper men by burlesquing witnesses, who had presented testimony before the court.

Young Vandervoot inquires as to accomodations at the prison where he expects to be sent. The lad has repeatedly discussed his crime with his cellmates, the sheriff said today. He has gone into minute details describing how he brought his rifle up to within thirty inches of his father's head before pulling the trigger.

REPEAL ACTION ON TAX BEGINS

STATES START FIGHT AGAINST ESTATE LEVY.

BILL BEING DRAFTED

Nearly Every Member of House Ways And Means Committee Has Different Plan For Reduction.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The fight by states to secure repeal of the federal estate tax was launched today before the House ways and means committee drafting the new revenue law.

A delegation from the Texas legislature has appeared and demanded that after January, 1929, the power to tax estates be vested exclusively in the state governments.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Fortified with Secretary of Treasury Mellon's recommendations for a 250 million dollar slash in the national tax bill, the powerful ways and means committee of the House set about today drafting the new revenue bill.

This measure, if drawn, will incorporate some of Mr. Mellon's proposals but many of his suggestions are due for the discard, it was stated by both Republican and Democratic members of the committee.

Representative J. Ogden Mills, Republican of New York, appeared to be the only committee member indicating his purpose to go along with the Secretary of Treasury in his recommendations to restrict the revenue cut to less than 300 million dollars, and to make the largest reduction in taxes on higher incomes, with the repeal of the federal estate and gift taxes and the termination of the issuance of tax-exempt securities.

Before the committee today, there is about twenty plans for tax reduction. The plan formulated by every member of the committee differs in some particular from every other plan.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Court martial papers for Col. William Mitchell, who charged his superiors with "criminal inefficiency" in administration of the country's air forces, reached the desk of Secretary Davis today.

They came through military channels and were endorsed to Davis with the recommendations of Mitchell's superiors that he be tried for "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline." Secretary Davis is expected to order the court after an examination and study of the papers.

THE SPORTING PUBLIC.

Chief Justice Taft, according to a writer in "Current History," has said the trial of a criminal seems like a game of chance, with all the chances in favor of the criminal, and if he escapes he seems to have the sympathy of "a sporting public."

There undoubtedly has been too much of this feeling among us, but there is an indication we are begining to look at the matter different. There has been rather too much of this sport and we are tiring of the game. Although we have not made great progress toward giving the professional criminal serious trouble, there is evidence the people generally fully realize the importance of taking crime out of the list of safe occupations.

It may have been a generous impulse which caused us to want the criminal to have a sporting chance, but we are beginning to see it is about time for the law-abiding man of every community to have more than a sporting chance of avoiding an unprofitable meeting with a criminal.—Kansas City Journal.

WHY MEN LEAVE HOME.

The Missouri legislature might profitably consider why Missourians leave home and why more people from other states do not come to Missouri to live.

Florida in its legislature considered this matter and the result was a constitutional amendment declaring that no income tax should ever be levied by the state and that there should be no state inheritance taxes. Other nuisance taxes were abolished.

California has also considered these matters and has passed a lot of laws to make it easy for people from other countries to live in California. Climate is not the only thing which attracts to California.

In Missouri the State and the city councils make it pretty hard for a man to do business and live in Missouri. Taxes lie against everything. We have an income tax report to make out to the state in addition to the income tax reports required by the government. We have inheritance taxes for the State and we have antiquated laws for the assessing and collecting of all kinds of taxes. Our corporation tax laws are of such a nature that corporations can hardly afford to do business in Missouri.

Just now the Missouri Association is preparing for an advertising campaign to bring people to Missouri. When one advertises and tries to sell somebody something one sets forth the advantages of the sale. The merchant who advertises and cannot live up to his advertisement or has nothing to offer is the one who decides that advertising does not pay.

The Missouri Association will do a lot of good anyhow because Missouri is not any worse off than the states about her. The same things which send Missourians to California and Florida send Kansas and Iowans and Illinoisans.

The best advertisement for Missouri, if we want people from other states to come here to live would be the repeal of a lot of nuisance laws and the letting of people know that in Missouri it is not considered a crime to own property and that the State and county is not going to confiscate all the interest you may get from an eight per cent note.—Independence Examiner.

Mellon and Hoover Are Leading Members

Looked Upon as Most Prominent in President Coolidge's Cabinet—Kellogg Takes Orders.

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington. — President Coolidge's two leading cabinet members unquestionably are Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

This isn't to say that the others aren't good men in their places, but that Mellon and Hoover are more absolute in their respective departments than any of the rest and that Hoover has more to do in the shaping of more different policies than any other single individual under the national chief executive.

Secretary of State Kellogg takes his orders from the White House and doesn't look down on suggestions from Senator Borah, chairman of the upper house Foreign Relations Committee. Secretary of War Weeks had a pretty free hand, and so, perhaps, will Secretary Davis, but the War Department is distinctly tied down by presidential ideas of economy.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur not only is financially cramped in style, but has to be careful how he expresses himself, as witness the calling down he got from the White House a year and a half ago for speeches he made in California.

Postmaster General New's limitations are mainly financial, but, he too, has to conform in this respect.

Attorney General Sargent and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine were handpicked to develop plans chosen in advance by the administration.

Secretary of the Interior Work is dependent on the president for protection from political interests which are trying to get his scalp. Secretary of Labor Davis—two Davis' in the cabinet now—isn't an aggressive department head anyway.

Services at Prospect Hill Are Profitable

Officers of Nodaway County Sunday School Association Give Pleasing Addresses.

(By Edgar O. Wells, Minister.)

All those who came to hear the officers of the Nodaway County Sunday School Association at 6:30 last Sunday night, were well repaid for their coming, as the program presented was a personal uplift to all, and the stay at home crowd which is as usual in the majority, missed something great. After the program was partly given, in fact it was a part thereof, the officers of the first division of the Young People's Council were elected and instructed as to their duty, the devotional meeting conducted, and a very fine address given, a Friendship Circle was formed, which reached entirely around the church, we waited in the silent chambers of the soul, while many sentence prayers were offered, and together we sang, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and the program came to an end after one hour and a half of worthwhileness.

We much regret that we have not the full names of each officer elected, as well as of those of the county, to give to the press, but come again young people, the doors of the Prospect Hill Methodist Church, of Elmo, swing both ways, for such as you to enter.

The themes for next Sunday's sermons will be in the order given. Morning, "Miners After the Eternal Truth," night, "The Code of the Wilderness vs. the Code of Jesus." Our motto, "The Open Hand of Welcome to All."

Dr. Ernest B. Thompson will preach on Sunday night, November 1st and at the close of the sermon, will conduct the first quarterly conference of the new year.

STOP COUGHING!

"Last winter I contracted a terrible cough and could not check it," said Mrs. Myrtle Griffith of 128 South C. St., Poplar Bluff, Mo. (Picture above.) "Finally, one day I was in a drug store and asked the druggist what he thought would be good for my cough. He said Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was the best thing I could get. I then took two bottles of the 'Discovery' and by that time I had no cough at all. I discovered also that it helped me otherwise, gave me a normal appetite and rich red blood."

TOM SIMS SAYS

Winter's best. Because then you know summer's due next. But in summer, you know winter's coming.

Life is mountains and valleys. When on the mountain, enjoy the valley. When in the valley, appreciate the mountain.

It's a level mind which realizes all things are extremes and lops off or adds to accordingly.

Contentment lies in your own world. The fish wouldn't enjoy flying or the birds find pleasure in swimming.

It is doubly hard to bear your cross when it is caused by some friend double crossing you.

Continue Search for Three Persons Missing

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 20.—The airplane and speedboat search for a father, his son and 16-year-old companion was being continued today on Lake St. Clair where the trio is believed to be either drowned or drifting. According to reports to police, Henry S. Scotter, 45, his son, Stanley, 18, and Roy Witherll, 16, left St. Clair Sunday night in a thirty-two-foot launch, bound for Detroit. The average time for the trip is four hours, but no word had been received today of the missing trio.

Mayor Here Invited to Two Conferences

Requests that Maryville send representatives to two conferences on municipal problems have been received at the office of Mayor W. O. Garrett. One is an invitation to the convention and exposition of the American Society for Municipal Improvement to be held at Des Moines on October 26-29, and the other urges attendance at the Missouri Conference on Water Purification to be held at Kirksville, Mo., under the auspices of the State Board of Health.

While the Kirksville conference is to be confined to discussion of the problem of supplying cities with pure water, that at Des Moines will consider paving, street lighting, traffic signals, sewage disposal, parks and playgrounds, city planning and other municipal activities.

Mayor Garrett has not yet decided whether Maryville can have a representative at either meeting.

Financial "War" Is Cause of Activity

Durant Interests Battle With Morgan And Dupont On New York Exchange Send Quotations Quivering.

New York, Oct. 20.—(United Press)—A renewal of warfare between two old financial enemies, William C. Duran, and the Morgan and Dupont interests, was one explanation today for the phenomenal activity of the stock market during the past week.

Many observers along Wall Street believe that it is Durant's effort to retain control of the gigantic general motors corporation, which has stirred most of the activity. They predict that the turmoil will continue. Durant, who has twice lost control of the huge corporation which he established, was believed five years ago to be broke and out of the running. But since that time he has built up his fortune again, which in 1920 was conservately estimated at between $90,000,00 and $100,000,000.

In the last six months general motors stock has advanced from a low for the year of 64⅝ to 137. Brokers attribute this rise to Durant's purchases in his contest to wrest control from the Morgans and Dupónts, who now command the organization.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

(W. J. Watt and Co.)

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John W. Brooke, hardware magnate and widower, arranges with the Economy and Efficiency Corporation, Limited, for scientific management of his household for a period of two months that he will be out of the city. He fails to inform his three children, Constance, William and Alice about his plans.

H. Hedge, efficiency engineer, picked to put the order into effect, breaks the news to the overwhelmed heirs-to-be. Having proved his right to remain they have dinner. Afterwards Hedge orders all the servants brought before him. He produces the proxy signed by the head of the house and requests close attention.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Raising his voice slightly, Hedge proceeded once more to read aloud that extraordinary instrument which began, "I, John W. Brooke," after the fashion of a last will and testament. He read slowly and clearly, pausing between phrases, in order that a full comprehension of his words might be obtained. When he reached the red seal, he looked up and folded the paper.

"The hour now being 10 o'clock, Alice will kindly go to bed."

"I am the Hedge referred to in this document," he said. "Do you all understand it?"

The eight servants remained silent and, with one accord, glanced at Constance.

"You may indicate that you understand it—if you really do," said Constance quietly.

Eight heads nodded.

"Very well," said Mr. Hedge. "Return to your quarters."

The household help filed out from the library with funeral steps. From the hallway it was possible to distinguish whispering, mingled with the noise of retreating footsteps.

The efficiency man walked over to a writing-table, seated himself, picked up a pen, and apparently forgot the existence of the three Brookes. Constance, her lips tightly compressed, retreated to the farther end of the room and stared into the glow of an open fire. Billy, uneasily thumbling a book, finally tossed it aside and disappeared. The opening and closing of the front door accounted for his maneuver. Alice sought consolation in the Circassian-walnut phonograph. She played the loudest concert records she could find, with frequent glances in the direction of H. Hedge.

He was maddeningly oblivious.

Curosity overcame Alice at length. She pretended to hunt for a book, and the search twice carried her past the desk at which the efficiency man was working. But even two inspections did not enlighten her. He seemed to be working at a problem, but wholly unlike any she had ever encountered at school. He was making diagrams, doing sums in arithmetic, and writing memoranda, all on the same sheet of paper, and he was intensely absorbed in his work.

Half an hour of silence ensued in the library, and then the efficiency man looked up suddenly and consulted the reading of a large clock that stood in the corner.

"Alice!"

The younger of the Brooke girls could scarcely believe her ears. She looked up from her chair and stared at him.

"How old are you?" he asked abruptly.

Alice gasped and turned pink. She rose to her feet and stood quivering. It was outrageous! Constance walked quickly to her, placed an arm about her shoulders, and then directed a look of scorn into the eyes of the questioner.

"By what right you ask I do not know," she said coldly. "It is easier however, to answer the question than to argue. Alice is fifteen."

"That being the case, and the hour now being ten o'clock," remarked H. Hedge, "Alice will kindly go to bed."

For an irresolute moment Alice stood glaring at him, her pink cheeks turning rosier each second. Then, when the tears brimmed over, she turned and fled from the room.

"This," said Constance, "is shameless!"

"On the contrary, it is common sense," returned the efficiency man unemotionally, as he studied Constance with a contemplative gaze.

It was not properly a battle of eyes, for the fire of combat lay only in those of the girl. The eyes of efficiency man were merely placid, although they were singularly steady. It was like trying to stare the Sphinx out of countenance, and Constance soon abandoned the task.

"I shall join my sister," she said. "You—you are a boor."

"As you wish," he said pleasantly, "although I should not have asked you to retire until eleven o'clock, as you are obviously several years older than your sister. And I am not a boor; I am simply an efficiency engineer. Good night."

Constance did not answer him. She walked from the library, her shoulders squared, her head erect, her steps measured and deliberate. But when she had turned into the hall, beyond the sight of H. Hedge, she ran.

* * *

H. Hedge had been sitting at the library-table for an hour and a half before any member of the family appeared. He was busy examining, assorting, and piling an array of books and documents. Seven o'clock had found him there, when daylight was still so wan and feeble that he needed the assistance of an electric bulb. He was beginning to get hungry.

Alice was first to observe him. She walked briskly into the room, humming, stopped short and saw the efficiency man. It was such an aggressively cheerful morning, with sunlight now streaming through the broad windows, that Alice, in buoyant response to the mood of the day, had utterly forgotten the presence of this creature under the Brooke roof-tree.

The tune died in a dismal little wail. She wheeled sharply and disappeared into the hall. It would have been quite proper if a great cloud had covered the face of the sun and at the same instant; although as it chanced, none did.

Constance appeared five minutes later, but with no evidence of the surprise displayed by her sister.

"Good morning," said Hedge, rising. He nodded and smiled in perfect friendliness. There was not the least suggestion in his manner or voice that betrayed memory of having been described as a boor.

"Good morning," replied Constance crisply.

She hesitated for an instant, then approached the desk and stood facing him, across the broad mahogany expanse.

"Breakfast is ready now," she said.

"Very good. We will go in."

"Before we do, I wish to say one thing, Mr. Hedge." She spoke with composure.

He nodded.

"There is one fixed rule in our house, which I must ask you to observe. No matter what has happened the evening before, nobody is permitted to be disagreeable at breakfast. My father has always insisted on this and it has become our custom. This, so far as possible, is applied to all meals; in the case of breakfast, invariably. May I ask you not to—to—"

"Not to break it?" he supplied with a smile. "Certainly. I'll observe the rule. It's a good one."

"Thank you," said Constance gravely. "Of course, after breakfast—"

She ended the sentence with a shrug that was non-committal.

"Oh, of course," he responded nonchalantly.

Constance led the way into the dining room. Billy and Alice were at the table, the latter half-choked with laughter over something her brother had said.

"Good morning," nodded Billy cheerfully, glancing up.

"Good morning," said Alice, as though she were beholding the efficiency man for the first time that day. She was still laugaing.

"Good morning," said Hedge cordially, and he sat down.

"Well, Connie, have you treated him as you would father?" demanded her brother with a grin.

The magic influence of the breakfast hour still resisted shock. Constance neither blushed nor frowned. She laughed heartily. H. Hedge did likewise, but with a little wrinkle of perplexity between his eyes.

"If there is anything I am missing," he remarked, "I leave it to your sense of fair play to see that I get it."

Alice whooped. Billy, with an air of grave inquiry, stood up and gazed fixedly at the top of the efficiency man's head. The heavy thatch of dark hair caused him to groan regretfully.

"No; you can't get it—not the way father does," he said sadly.

"That's too bad; if there's anything I can do—"

Alice whooped again.

"You—you might live to be fifty or sixty or seventy or eighty years old," she said, "and then maybe you'd be—"

"Alice! Fair play, now," continued Constance.

"Oh, well, if he doesn't want to wait that long, he could—"

Constance reached across the table and laid her hand across her sister's lips.

"Imp!" she said severely. "Don't spoil it. Besides, I'm not the only one, you know."

"Pooh! I'm not afraid," said Alice. "You lead on and watch me."

"Evidently," sighed the efficiency man, "I am not to be treated as father is. Whatever ought to be coming to me, I am not going to get—yet."

Billy looked at Hedge with a sudden air of interest and then beamed upon Constance.

Constance, however, was very busy with an orange, if a trifle flushed. She pretended not to hear. Alice was happy beyond speech; she gurgled her joy. Billy seemed to be contemplating another attack. It was the efficiency man who broke up the situation.

"Desert Flower" at Empire Takes Well

Those who saw Colleen Moore in "The Desert Flower" at the Empire Theatre last night acclaim it to be one of the best pictures ever done by this favorite of so many. The theme of the story is woven around a mining camp girl who reforms a millionaire and, after thrill on thrill, marries him and "lives happily ever after."

Lloyd Hughes, in the role of Rance Conway, heads the supporting cast in this story of a saud-waif, full of fun, yet with a heart that yearns for love.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Use of the military forces of the country to enforce the dry law was predicted today by Wayne B. Wheeler, who had a conference with President Coolidge at the White House today, said the army and navy were not needed now but declared "no one could doubt the wisdom of the example of George Washington in calling out the army to deal with the whiskey rebellion of 1793."

LOCARNO PACT IS PUBLISHED

ENGLAND'S ENTHUSIASM IS NOT DAMPENED BY TEXT.

ARE SEVEN TREATIES

Securities Plans Not Into Effect Until German Nation Joins League Of Nations.

London, Oct. 20—England's enthusiasm at the first word of the Locarno agreements was little dampened today after a week end of consideration and publication last night of the full text of the pacts.

A few commentaries point out the possibility of difficulties if Great Britain and Italy, as co-guarantors of the status quo, disagree regarding the military of "unprovoked aggression on the part of either Germany or France."

Although the securities pact will be signed in London on December 1, it will not become effective until Germany becomes a member of the League of Nations.

London, Oct. 20.—The fruit of the Locarno security conference was put on display last night for all the world to see, when seven treaties, which comprise Europe's newest and most promising preventives of war, were made public in the various capitals.

The first and foremost of the agreements is the security pact, or treaty of mutual guarantee, the inviolability of the frontiers between Germany and Belgium and Germany and France as fixed by the treaty of Versailles. It will be signed in London, December 1, and, assuming that all the signatory governments ratify the pact, it will become effective when Germany joins the League of Nations.

By the treaty, Germany, on her side, undertakes never to trespass upon the soil of France or Belgium, or make any war-like gesture in the demilitarized Rhineland area.

On their side, France and Belgium promise not to violate Germany's western frontier. Should either party violate the agreements set forth, the pact provides Great Britain and Italy shall go to the aid of the aggrieved party, whether it be Germany, France or Belgium.

The powers parties to the pact agree to submit all their future disputes to judicial treatment, with the counsel of the league acting as a court. The whole plan is to work under the aegis of the league; it is for that reason the treaties do not become operative until Germany is a member of that organization.

Top Price on Harvey Boars Paid by Iowan

W. O. Bowers, Conway, Ia., Pays $70 For Chester White Hog—Average On First 25 is $41.

Boars sold at fairly good prices this afternoon at the annual Chester White hog sale of J. H. Harvey.

The first twenty-five of the young boars, all of which were spring pigs, brought an average of $41. Later sales brought down that average slightly.

The top price on boars was paid by W. O. Bowers of oCnway, Ia., who paid $70 for one sired by Model Type.

Many of the other buyers were from outside the county also.

The sale of gilts was begun late this afternoon.

H. J. McMurray of Council Bluffs, Ia., was auctioneer, and he was assisted by J. J. Wills of Platte City and Fred H. Moore, field man for the Chester White Journal. E. E. Williams was clerk of the sale.

What Jerry Says

Twas my friend Dorris Wallace,
Who sent in her guess,
While the Democrat-Forum,
Was still hot from the press.

"Do it now," is her motto,
And that always wins.
So it is her pleasure,
To be wearing the "grins."

If you had been swifter,
It might have been you,
For this is the answer,

LIVE STOCK PRICES HIGHER; TRADE ACTIVE

Kansas City Stock Yards, Oct. 19.—The moderate receipts in all divisions met a strong demand at higher prices. Both cattle and sheep receipts indicated the heaviest runs are over and that from now on the movement will decrease steadily until a complete clean up is made. Cattle were strong to 25 cents higher. The advance showed in fat classes as well as stockers and feeders. Hogs were up 15 to 25 cents, and only 10 to 15 cents under Chicago and St. Louis. Receipts were the smallest of any Monday this season. Sheep and lambs were strong to 15 cents higher.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 33,000 cattle, 3,500 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, compared with 48,000 cattle, 7,000 hogs, and 18,000 sheep a week ago, and 39,800 cattle, 10,500 hogs and 8,550 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

The supply of fat cattle was limited and prices ruled strong to 25 cents higher, mostly 10 to 15 cents up. A few loads of steers at $10.50 to $12.50 were the only offerings that showed any material amount of feed. The warmed up and short fed classes sold at $8.50 to $10. Good quality full fed steers would have brought $14 up, but they were lacking. The Chicago market was relatively weak due to the fact that 12,000 grass fat cattle came in completion with a heavy run of short fed steers. Cows and heifers were strong to 15 cents higher and in active demand. "Canner" and cutters advanced as much as the fat kinds. Heifers which were relatively low last week and sold slowly are in broad demand again. Veal calves were 50 cents higher, top light weights $11.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders were in liberal supply, but demand was large and the offerings cleared readily at strong prices. Quality was fairly good. Last week 44,000 stockers and feeders were bought and shipped back to the country, the largest outbound movement this year, and trade today showed about the same volume as a week ago.

Hogs.

Hog prices were 15 to 25 cents higher today than last week's close, and 40 to 50 cents above the low point of the season recorded last Wednesday. Demand was urgent at the advance, and conditions are favorable for a further gain before the week end. The top price today was $11.85, paid for light weights and the bulk of the 160 to 265 pound hogs sold at $11.50 to $11.80. Heavy weights sold up to $11.60. Packing sows brought $10.25 to $10.75, and stock hogs and pigs $11.25 to $12.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep and lambs were strong to 15 cents higher. The bulk of the offerings, western range lambs sold at $14.50 to $14.90. Some Texas yearlings brought $11.50 to $11.75, and feeding lambs $14.50 to $14.85.

Horses and Mules.

Demand for good horses and mules remains active at firm prices. Receipts are holding around 900 each week, but are short of requirements.

Market Correspondent.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Grains had a mixed finish on the local Board of Trade today. Wheat gained fractionally, corn lagged and oats held steady.

Firmness in wheat reflected bull sentiment growing out of decidedly unfavorable foreign crop news. Bears persistently sought to weaken the defense of high price advocates but were successful only to the extent of causing a final drop under profit selling.

Only one car of grain was received here today, the smallest in years, but despite this prices at the spot counter held nominally steady.

Pressure in corn was lightened by strengths in wheat. Local traders appeared willing to sell. Clear, cold weather over the belt was regarded as favorable for conditioning the new crop.

Oats were neglected as usual and closed without change.

Provisions rallied late from an early dip and finished at a profit. Cash houses were spirited buyers.

BEARCATS ARE WORKING HARD

TEAM MUST IMPROVE BEFORE OMAHA U. GAME.

NO NEW FORMATIONS

Several New Plays Likely To Be Added To Those Used in Friday's Game.

Yesterday the State Teachers College Bearcats started a week of strenuous practice preparatory to the game here Friday with Omaha University. Glowing with Homecoming victory of last week, the College gridders took to their work yesterday with a fine spirit and are evidently determined to stay in the winning column.

"I was pleased with the defensive work of the team against Kirksville," Coach H. Frank Lawrence said today, "but we all realize that there will have to be a marked improvement if we hope to fare as well against Omaha."

The work this week will be somewhat of a duplication of that of last. No new formations will be given, but the unofficial prediction is that Coach Lawrence and "Pete" Jones, his assistant, will school their charges on new plays from the old formations.

That the Bearcats are a strong defensive team, capable of tightening in the pinches, was manifested in Friday's game when they presented a stone wall in several instances, where weakness would have meant defeat.

That there is room for improvement also must be admitted. No team can be in perfect running order at the beginning of the season. However, there is the joy in knowing that the material is on hand for a strong grid machine and that the two mentors at the helm are capable of rounding out this machine.

There will probably be no important changes in the personnel of the team for the Omaha game. The team which started the game against Kirksville is likely the strongest combination that the Bearcats can muster and it is likely that it will remain intact.

Football Popularity Mirrored in Crowds

More Than 530,000 See Twenty "Leading" Games Played Last Saturday.

New York, Oct. 20.—Tremendous popularity of football is mirrored in the constantly increasing crowds which throng the athletic stadiums throughout the country each Saturday. Estimates gathered today by the United Press place the number of persons who witnessed the twenty "leading" games of last Saturday at more than 530,000. The figure would run past the million mark if other games were included.

The largest crowd of the day was in New York, where 80,000 gathered for the Notre Dame-Army game. New Haven held 70,000 for the Penn-Yale game. Harvard and Holy Cross played before 17,000 at Cambridge. Michigan and Wisconsin at Madison played to 40,000 and 38,000 were on hand at Stagg Field to see Chicago and Northwestern. Crowds of 30,000 each were at the Ohio State-Columbia game at Columbus and the Iowa-Illinois battle at Iowa City.
